To all First Nations University of Canada Faculty, Staff & Students,

Throughout the COVID-19 pandemic, the Saskatchewan post-secondary sector, in consultation with public health and Saskatchewan's Chief Medical Health Officer, has worked together to safeguard our students and staff. With the extenuating circumstances of COVID-19 and the release of the Re-Open Saskatchewan Plan on April 23, 2020, the decision to continue with the remote learning distance delivery method will continue for Fall 2020 term.

We remain committed to fulfilling FNU's mission "to preserve, protect and interpret the history, language, culture and artistic heritage of First Nations" as we develop plans for delivery of programs and courses in the Fall 2020 term.

The First Nations University of Canada will remain focused on providing a safe learning environment for students, faculty and staff. The planning we do in the coming weeks will take into account these uncertain times, as new developments may require modifications to the approach we take.

The First Nations University of Canada will continue to communicate any changes to our plans as the situation evolves.

Please visit http://fnuniv.ca/COVID-19_Update for updated information.

We ask for your continued cooperation, collaboration and patience as we continue to navigate through these uncertain times.
