

A Bigger, Bolder Future

The New Northern Campus

A Bold Vision for the Future of Indigenous Education

A Vision for Change

First Nations University of Canada's (FNUiv) new Northern Campus in Prince Albert will empower Northern communities by educating the next generation of leaders. Rooted in Indigenous ways of knowing, it will transform education and inspire innovation across the North.

With guidance from Elders, Knowledge Keepers, and partners, we will:

- Create a learning space where Indigenous knowledge, land-based teachings, and ceremony support student success.
- Build a gathering place for nations to share stories, exchange knowledge, and break down barriers for future generations.

- Launch Science & Technology programs that blend Indigenous knowledge with modern advancements.
- Empower Northern Saskatchewan's future by educating the next generation of skilled leaders.

Why It Matters

Northern Indigenous communities face distinct challenges in accessing education due to barriers such as limited infrastructure, vast distances, and scarce resources.

Culture, Community & Innovation

This new Northern Campus will:

- Provide post-secondary education grounded in Indigenous culture closer to home for Northern communities.
- Foster belonging, safety, & kinship.
- Feature state-of-the-art, Indigenous-designed, environmentally sustainable facilities that inspire learning and innovation.
- Offer vital student supports for academic and personal success.

Innovating Through Science & Technology

FNUniv is expanding its curricula to integrate Indigenous knowledge with modern scientific principles, creating a transformative learning experience.

Our initiatives include:

- Expanded Science & Technology programs aligned with 21st-century needs.
- Enhanced remote learning to provide greater access to education.

"At FNUniv, we cultivate communities that honour Indigenous histories, stories, and knowledge systems, fostering a deep sense of belonging. What sets us apart? Our foundation in rich, sophisticated Indigenous knowledges—shaping education in a way no other university does."

— Dr. Jacqueline Ottmann, President, FNUniv

Empowering the Next Generation of Leaders

By investing in student services, mentorship programs, and cultural learning opportunities, we ensure every student feels supported, valued, and empowered to excel.

Be Part of the Transformation

Join us in building a future where Indigenous ways of being, knowing, and doing are celebrated and fully integrated into education, creating lasting impact for generations.
